Size refers to how big or small a thing is. Common sizes for us clothes are extra small, small, medium, large, extra large. Example: a small shirt, extra large pants. The short way to write the sizes are XS, S, M, L, XL.

Now you try. Read and say the size: medium, extra large, small. Let's continue.

Fit refers to how the clothing size matches a person's body. For clothing size that is not correct for the body, say the clothing, the correct form of "be," the word "to," and the problem. Example: the dress is too small, the sweater is too big.

Now you try. Write the words in the correct order. Let's continue.

Use "too small" when the space from side to side is less than the space needed.
Example: the t-shirt is too small.

Use "too big" when the space from side to side is more than the space needed.
Example: the t-shirt is too big.

Use "too short" when the space from top to bottom is less than the space needed.
Example: the t-shirt is too short.

Use "too long" when the space from top to bottom is more than the space needed.
Example: the t-shirt is too long.

Final challenge: say the problem with the clothing fit. The boots are too big. The dress is too short. The socks are too small.
